

Interviews That Allow Students to...

Make a Choice!

An exciting new resource full of questions for children to answer.

Who's Who? Interviews That Allow Students to Make a Choice! (Volume 3) extends the survey process by teaching students to "interview." The focus isn't to find out as much as possible about one person, but to search a group of people for certain characteristics, e.g. "Who likes bugs?" This volume contains over 100 interviews, enabling students to find out a little bit more about their peers.

This activity scaffolds the reading process by expecting students to read, predict, question, evaluate, and repeat the process again... all the while, making a choice!

This book is designed to be a resource for teachers of young readers and writers. Our sincere hope is that these activities will be as fun and successful for your students as they have been for ours. We look forward to hearing the results of using these books in YOUR class.
